Job Title: Director of Grants and Community Initiatives
Department: Collective Impact
Reports to: Vice President of Collective Impact
Status: Regular Full-Time Exempt
Date Prepared: August 2026

POSITION SUMMARY: The Director of Grants and Community Initiatives helps advance the mission of United Way of South Central Tennessee through excellence, flexibility, diplomacy, and accountability. This role combines grant writing and grant management with community outreach, including Continuum of Care (CoC) coordination and support for the agency's Community Data Collaborative, and works alongside United Way's collective impact team on strategic initiatives, partnerships, community planning, and outcomes-based impact. This role spans three areas of work: grant writing, CoC/HMIS coordination, and data collaboration support, with the approximate time split reflected below.

A Note on This Role

This role draws on three different skill sets that don't always live in the same person: persuasive grant writing under deadline, steady relationship, compliance, and administrative work within the Continuum of Care, and comfort working with data and reporting. We're not expecting equal strength in all three, but we are looking for someone who can move between them, and who's honest with us (and themselves) about which one they'll need support growing into.

- Develop and maintain relationships with funding sources, including foundations, government agencies, and corporate grantmakers

Continuum of Care (CoC) & HMIS Coordination (Approx. 30% of role)

- Help translate CoC data into the Community Data Collaborative's reporting and represent United Way's role as a data and coordination backbone in related funder and partner conversations
- Contribute the Community Data Collaborative's long-term strategy, including its role in United Way's broader efforts to diversify revenue
